Photo: Twitter/Aqif Baloch was laid to rest on Wednesday afternoon, more than 24 hours after she was killed by her brother on Tuesday night in an upscale neighbourhood of Karachi. Her death has sparked outrage among feminist activists who see the murder as a misogynist act by a family member against a woman in a patriarchal country. Pakistan’s Minister for Human Rights, Shireen Mazari, described it as “shocking” and “unacceptable.” Following the incident, Baloch’s brother filmed himself singing her “tributes” on social media. "I am her brother and I am here to tell everyone that we found our sister dead this evening. She's killed by the hands of her own brother. Everyone please help us in this matter."The smooth-muscle-specific myosin regulatory light chain is phosphorylated in vitro by a protein kinase purified from bovine heart. In vitro phosphorylation of bovine heart regulatory light chain (RLC) by bovine heart calmodulin-dependent protein kinase II (CaM-kinase II) has been analyzed by immunoprecipitation and alkaline phosphatase treatment followed by electrophoresis and autoradiography. The results show that the phosphorylation of RLC is due to CaM-kinase II. The partial alkaline-phosphatase-cleavable phosphorylation of the heavy chain of myosin by the same preparation of CaM-kinase II was investigated by electrophoresis, immunoprecipitation, and autoradiography. It has been found that in vitro phosphorylation of the myosin heavy chain (MHC) did not cause a cleavage of the phosphorylated heavy chain, suggesting that CaM-kinase II interacts with the myosin heavy chain and phosphorylates it, but no cleavage takes place in the heavy chain.
