Who would benefit from Photoshop? Professional photographers, graphic designers, web designers, Discord emoji creators and meme-makers all use Photoshop to edit images, create new high-quality images, or both. I find Photoshop to be useful but I often work on a limited computer with an old slow processor and lots of old software. For example, I cannot use the feature of producing a set of graphics to export with a single click. I also find that the program is very frustrating and it takes a lot of time to do tasks that can be done easily in other graphics editors. I would also like to stress that, personally, I find that Photoshop makes it much easier to convey the idea of a problem to someone else; I can write a document explaining an idea and then show an image of what I have in mind. This is very hard to achieve in other graphics editors because you can draw your pictures and you can select text. However, you can't copy/paste it and you can't replicate your idea on the webpage in the same way. Photoshop is not good for concepts but, if you want to be really creative, you are forced to use Photoshop, especially for images. This is the reason why a lot of graphic designers and website developers use Photoshop. If I were to name something that separates a "high-quality" logo from a "low-quality" logo, I would say that the latter was the logo of the guy who made the designer use Photoshop for two weeks and learn how to use it. The more a logo designer has worked with the Photoshop program, the more powerful graphic editor he will be. So you should understand that Photoshop is one of the most used programs in the world. GTA V's First Trailer 14 Oct 2013 We've been trying to prepare ourselves for the reveal of Grand Theft Auto V's first trailer for months now, but we're still in shock. After the first five minutes, which you can see in this video (watch at your own risk), it looks like we have an early winner on our hands. In this first trailer, GTA V takes players on a trip around a night-time version of Los Santos (?) with possibly three people we know about. Travis Lanham, who is the Critic Prophecy's chief editor, says it looks "kind of like GTA V plus." We can't wait to get our hands on the game, and hopefully it will take us back to a time when the game didn't have a mission giver who died within an hour of completion, or the feds are chasing you and you're forced to eat your gun just to escape arrest. Now that Rockstar's taken great care in clearing away the cobwebs of Grand Theft Auto IV's mechanics, it's time for GTA V to shake off its wings, rid itself of its shell, and fly into the sunset. So what do you think of GTA V's first trailer? Let us know in the comments. David is Editor in Chief of Critic Powered. He doesn't mind getting his hands dirty, or really anything dirty. Maybe a little gardening once in a while, and he is partial to a bowl of cereal for breakfast. His movie hobby includes Blade Runner, Star Trek, Star Wars, Godzilla, Marvel, DC, and pretty much anything with an alien or robot involved. He can be contacted at david [at] criticstuff.com.Q: How can I remove a Range from a Worksheet, and make sure the range has been properly deleted?
