One of the most legendary examples of a head-mounted display worn by elite soldiers in the field.

Made by the IRON RAIN company, it was once known as the MDR-4. The unit commissioned to develop this model went by the name of Saturn and is considered their masterwork. Made to provide the wearer with the most immersive visuals possible, the device is capable of simulating the artificial reality of the real thing. The MDR-4 is equipped with an 8-color LED screen. The ground of the wearer is completely recreated and can be configured to match the actual environment. The eyepiece of the MDR-4 is anti-glare and does not interfere with combat. The head movement is fully controllable via the display and the unit is fitted with a high precision balance system. The wearer's positional awareness is also simulated by the device. The MDR-4 has been presented at the Stockholm International Film Festival as well as the Cannes International Film Festival. A unique example of technological innovation that has found its way into the hands of law enforcement and commercial use. The units display is a premium example of low-cost HMD design. The first units were fitted with a single monochrome display, but the quality and versatility of the model has progressed greatly.

Over the last few years, the MDR-4 has been refurbished and completely redesigned to add advanced features and improve the experience of the operator. COMPANIES WITH HEAVY INVESTMENT IN THE MDR-4: JML Electronics One of the first companies to request the development of the prototype MDR-4, Japan's JML Electronics has become the first to make it into mass production. OEM Partners: Dongguan Panger Biometrics Co.,Ltd. (DONGGUAN) Made in Mainland China,Dongguan Panger Biometrics Co.,Ltd. is a full-line low-cost HMD manufacturer specializing in the design, production and sales of HMDs. Panger have achieved near-perfect repeatability. The glass and plastic HMDs come in an extensive range of eye sizes from 3 to 7.5, in addition to standard military model sizes as well as a wide range of frame colors. Fit: Consult your eye doctor to determine the best fit for your natural eye size. The eyepiece of the MDR-4 has a yellow fog resistant

PC Gamer praised the original Mortal Kombat (1993) in its release year: “The game, despite its rough edges, succeeds in being the most vicious version of the Street Fighter franchise to date. No doubt the feedback loop we’ve seen in recent years will turn Mortal Kombat into a reality show, but that’s for another day.” “The game, despite its rough edges, succeeds in being the most vicious version of the Street Fighter franchise to date. No doubt the feedback loop we’ve seen in recent years will turn Mortal Kombat into a reality show, but that’s for another day.” -GameSpot’s review of Mortal Kombat (1994) About This Game: The original Mortal Kombat (1993) is revered as one of the greatest fighting games of all time and is still very popular in esports. The game was released for the PC in 1994, PlayStation in 1995, and Sega Saturn in 1996. - The main objective of the game is to find the main character and "what happened". Using the toolbox you can manipulate the environment to find out what happened. - The main character's narration and descriptions will help you to understand the environment you are in and the reasons for the events that occurred. This will allow you to get to the end of the game. - Use the toolbox to manipulate the environment to find out what happened. - Your decisions are reflected in the environment and can cause a change. - As you interact with the environment, find objects, use the toolbox and ask questions to the main character, the story will change. - The game atmosphere is created by music. At the beginning of the game there are samples of an unknown country. As the game progresses, the theme changes with the direction and changes. For example, there are various sounds - the ship, waves, wind, and so on. Graphics: The game is displayed in 3D and uses an interface that is close to reality. Music: The game features pleasant, relaxing music that will open your senses. The various instruments include piano, guitar, bongo, flute, percussion, vocals, and so on. Déjà vu: Scientists track the electric sensitivity of an animal's brain after a dream. In a study of humans, researchers at University College London have shown that we can still experience the emotional state of dreaming when we are asleep, even after we have woken up. In an extension of this work, Jiri Leskovec at UCL, Jan Kähler at the University of Kiel and their colleagues show that animals' brains are equally electric, as electrosensitive fish would be. They report their results online today in Current Biology. In the study, scientists made recordings of the electric pulses from the brains of two kinds of rovefish fish. St Kitts cavefish, also known as 'Egyptian' fish, are the only cavefish species known to have electrosensitive skin -- when the skin receives an electrical shock, the fish appears to experience a brief sensation of pain. Leskovec and his colleagues discovered that the fish also have electrosensitive brains. But unlike fish, which can perceive the shock, primates cannot -- yet. Having recorded a brain's electrical activity in both waking and sleeping conditions, the researchers asked whether the fish's brains react differently to electric shocks while they were asleep as opposed to when they were

This build is primarily intended for PvP, though I did set it up for invasion, as well. There's very little difference between the two specs. Both have a weakness to fire, and high heat. They both also have an AoE ablative effect that reduces incoming damage from both fire and freeze. In the build guide, I included a few things that are not normally included. These are things you might find helpful when using the build.
Common Ablative Attributes: -1+(per level)% of damage against fire sources This gives extra thermal protection against fire, and has a limited effect against freezing. This attribute is added as soon as you purchase Utility Grade Jumpsuite.
-50% chance for AoE thermal protection against fire, freeze and bleed This is added at Utility Grade Jumpsuite as well. Note that you can have only one attribute on a single jump.
Notes on jump jumpsuit: -You start out at level 70. You always start at level 70. -You can set the jump jumpsuit to automatically repair itself, or you can manually heal it. See the Jump Jumpsuit Equipment documentation for details. If you choose to manually heal the jumpsuit, the healing is spent on healing, however. It won't automatically heal.
Advanced Ablative Attributes: -2(per level)% chance to reduce bleeding effects from attacks -1(per level)% of damage against fire sources -2(per level)% of damage against freeze sources These are added automatically at Level 10 when you purchase Red Tide Surface Blocks. I strongly recommend building these attributes if you are using the build. It completely changes the way that the build works.
Dispelling Ablative Attributes: -4(per level)% chance to remove ablative effects from the next attack. However, all abilities used from equip can be dispelled
Red Tide Slime: -20% of attack damage per stack This adds a significant amount of damage to your weapon. The damage is applied per attack,
