Steam: Amazon: Alternatively, you can also listen to a Spotify playlist containing all the tracks I have created here: Out of the fourteen tracks composed for the soundtrack of the game, nine are from my nature-themed tracks. Some of the tracks take inspirations from the tracks I composed for the song "NaCl586.Music" in my Youtube channel. This is a link to the song in my Youtube channel: Track:1, "The Most Beautiful Earth" "The Most Beautiful Earth" is composed as a tribute to the Earth. Firstly, I hope all the humans who are living on the earth can celebrate Earth Day on April 22, and everyone can be a part of it in the most way possible. Secondly, I hope all the beings in other planets, stars, and universes will also be a part of Earth Day. This game's main theme is that we should be kind to each other, respect others, and take care of the environment. We should also remember to care for the natural world around us. Maybe you don't believe me if you don't understand English, but I really mean it. Lastly, maybe this is just a hopeful dream, but the environment should be preserved for future generations, so that we can still enjoy everything we have in this world. Track:2, "Green World" This track is a mixture of the tracks I composed for the "NaCl586.Music" song in my Youtube channel and the tracks I compose for the soundtrack of "Great Marble Adventure" game, and is a tribute to the environment. The track is more of an electronic track, with the elements of rock, pop, and bossa nova. I hope you like it. Track:3, "Flowers in Your Tears" This track is also composed with the same inspiration from the tracks I composed for the "NaCl586.Music" song in my Youtube channel. It is a tribute to the environment, which has the power to heal your soul, and that environment should now remembered that Tony's house had been built within the walled city. Nestled in a canopy of trees and with the surrounding hills encircling them on three sides, the house blended into the rolling green countryside of his new home. It was real estate apparently, Anthony had told him that it had once been where the korchestant had been kept until his death, and access had been gained to the dwelling by a tunnel leading from a bush outside his home. Sadly, Tony's home had disappeared into the newly cultivated lands that sprouted thickets of small fruit trees. He had asked about Acatl, but Anthony had remained distant. Tony had not brought him here to harass him again, he had made that very clear. Xolotl had been informed that the Weaver's blade was given to Acatl when he left his village, and then was entrusted to the care of the council upon his return. Xolotl had been allowed to look at the blade before it was handed back to the council, but he had not dared ask any questions about its whereabouts, fearful of the answers that Tony would give. Seeing the look of pity on Xolotl's face, he had tried to hide it, but even that small flickering of emotion had managed to drive him closer to his brother's house. He tossed the apple into the grass, and swallowed the disappointment felt in his throat. He would have to look elsewhere for the blade. Xolotl had spent the remainder of the day combing through Tony's meager possessions. He had found little to look at. By the time he had arrived home, he was exhausted. His hands and arms were scratched and blistered by the stones and loose boulders he had for footing. He was unable to lift the cot for the long journey that lay ahead of him. There was however, one thing that Xolotl found himself holding onto with such intensity that he could not let it go. He carried it in hand as he approached the door that led to his brother's home. His fingers were cold and numb from the frigid air that had filled the streets. Xolotl gritted his teeth to keep himself from yawning, the same style of yawn that his brother had taunted him with when he had first met him at the market. His fingers were soaked in blood, fluttering with it. And his shoulder was still bleeding.
